

Thank you for your purchase.

To access your prompts, just click one of the two links below. Both links contain all of the same prompts, in which we add new prompts to daily.

 Database via this link.

 One link is your prompt database via Airtable.

 The other link is your prompt database via Notion.

 You will also find links via Google Sheets so you can save each prompt database into your own Google Drive account.

One link is to access the prompts via Airtable (preferred method) and the other link is via Notion. The Airtable base is recommended as it gets update quicker and may contain more prompts. You do not need to sign up for an account to access any of these databases and will always have access to all of the prompts as long as you have the links.

There are over 1,300+ now but within a year we hope to have a few thousand. They get updated weekly and often daily.

You can, however create an account if you want for any platform (both free). If you do, you can duplicate each database to your own and use however you'd like. But regardless, you can copy and paste any prompt to use with these two links and even download the database as a CSV file.

And please don't forget to subscribe to our YouTube page.

In Airtable, you'll notice multiple tabs and views for easy filtering and organization.
